

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. I tried it but it did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no loss of time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Fuller, Carpenter, 712D Marcellus avenue, Manassas, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any other who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation. (Adv.)

BABY HAS CROUP, USE MENTH-ALBA

Baby wakes in the dead of night with croup. It demands quick action. Something must be done before medicine can be sent for. The safest thing is to have always in the medicine chest a little jar of Menth-Alba, a pure white cream, composed of healing oils. Rub baby's chest and throat with Menth-Alba. The heat of the body will melt it, causing it to penetrate to the inflamed tissues, allaying the irritation that causes the croup. Menth-Alba never fails to give quick relief in cases of croup.

MENTH-ALBA SORE THROAT*WALK ERECT AT EIGHTY

Because a man or woman is old does not mean that they must walk along bent over and supported with a cane. A man can be as vigorous and healthy at eighty as at twenty if he aids the organs of the body in performing their functions. All diseases, whether of a malignant or weak character tend to tear away our vitality. You must counteract disease in its incipient stage if you would live a happy and useful life.

PUSH WORK ON DAYTON PLANT

Resumption of Blast Furnace Will Mark Important Era in Industrial Life.

(Special to The News.)
Dayton, Feb. 2.—The rebuilding of the furnace of the Dayton Coal and Iron company's plant is being pushed with the utmost dispatch and it will be put in full operation at the earliest possible moment.

The resumption of this plant, which has been idle for so long, will mark an important era in the industrial life of this city. From Smith's cross roads it made Dayton what it is today. It will be more modern and employ more hands than ever.

About a month ago the company opened its coal mines and is putting coal on the market in large quantities. The business of this huge concern will materially affect the commercial life of this section, when once it gets in full swing. It has merged its interests with those of the Matthews Steel and Iron company and is capitalized at $6,000,000.

Reports from along the Tennessee river indicate considerable loss of corn, which had been left standing in the fields unharvested, and some shelled and sacked and stacked on the banks to be dispatched by steamboat to the Chattanooga market. The boats attempted to come up the river during the first stages of the flood, but were completely blocked there.

Although the nearest point to the river is three miles away and across ridges, yet its backwaters are in the outskirts of Dayton.

VIRGIN ISLANDS MAY PASS PROHIBITION MEASURE

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Feb. 2.—The government yesterday introduced in the legislature a measure prohibiting the importation, manufacture, sale, giving away or having possession of intoxicating drinks within six months after approval of the bill. In proposing this legislation the government pointed out the extent of the temperance movement throughout the world, especially in the United States, and recommended that the Virgin Islands take action rather than await the mandate of superior authority.

BRAZIL HAS INNING OF GERMAN SPY SCARES

Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Dec. 31.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Brazil, now that it has entered the war, is having its spy scare and it has become more general even than in some of the other belligerent countries. It is only necessary for a person to be a foreigner and a stranger in any Brazilian town to become the object of suspicious regard by the people and even of police surveillance.

Orders have gone out from Rio de Janeiro for the arrest of large numbers of Germans, many of whom appear to be innocent business men, although there is no doubt but that German espionage is well organized in Southern Brazil. Spies are reported to have been especially active in the state of São Paulo and the government has taken rigid measures for watching all suspects there.

As soon as the government began these measures of precautions, however, a large number of rich and well-known German business men, who, under suspicion of being German government agents, succeeded in escaping into the Argentine republic with whatever secrets they may have had.

BOLSHEVIK ORDER POLES TO SURRENDER TOWN

Petrograd, Feb. 2.—The semi-official news agency says it is reported from Mohilev that 26,000 Polish legionaries, commanded by Polish generals, with their staff, have occupied the town of Rogachev, seventy-two miles south of Mohilev on the Dnieper river. The executive committee of the provincial workmen and soldiers' delegates has sent an ultimatum demanding the evacuation of Rogachev and the submission of the Polish forces in addition.

The fate of the Polish landowners, members of the constitutional democratic party and other counter-revolutionaries who have been arrested and held as hostages, depends on the surrender of the Poles.

ROAD TAKEN OVER BY WADDOO ONCE MARIETTA & NORTH GEORGIA

First Line of Railroad To Be Built and Operated in Polk County—Scenes of Grandeur Along Its Line Unsurpassed by Any Railroad East of the Rocky Mountains.

(By John S. Shamblin.)

Benton, Feb. 2.—The taking over of the old line of railroad in Polk county by Director-General McAdoo, who, at the first time this road has been operated by persons other than its owners. This line of road, the first to be built and operated in Polk county, was first known as the Marietta & North Georgia railroad. It was constructed about the years 1885-1889. The first passenger train was operated over the road about the year 1891. The road was operated at a financial loss from the beginning and was finally placed in the hands of a receiver, who continued to operate it until sold by order of the federal court at Atlanta, Ga., and bid in by the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern Construction company, a New York corporation. This company, on Dec. 18, 1896, sold out to the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern Railway company, a Georgia corporation, which continued to operate it until March 1, 1902, when the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company acquired control of it and operated it until taken over by Director-General McAdoo. The entire length of the road from Knoxville to Atlanta is about 335 miles, about 45 of which is in Polk county.

Beginning just below the gap of the mountain, where now stands the little station of Austral, going from there in the direction of Ducktown, the road runs along and near the bank of the Hiwassee river for a distance of some twenty-five miles, the scenic grandeur of which is unsurpassed by any railroad east of the Rockies. To the foot of the Wintery mountain, however, the road leaves the river and gradually winds up and around the mountain, making what is known as the Smoky Mountain Loop, the third longest loop in the world. After leaving the loop, the road runs in a southeasterly direction by way of Ducktown to Copperhill, where it crosses the state line.

Aside from the scenic grandeur of the road, there are a few places of more or less interest. The first place one passes after leaving Austral that is of interest is the penitentiary. This is a large bend in the river and is just below the flag station. Probably the name of the road was built there was only one way to get out and into the bend, and that was crossing from the north side of the river in a canoe, and the mountain was so steep and rough on the south side it was impossible to get out or in from that side. The next place of interest is the "Narrows." They are located just below the Farland station. Just before reaching the Narrows, the river is about one-half mile wide. It gradually gets narrower and narrower until at the narrowest place, at normal tide, the river is but nineteen feet wide. The river, although nineteen feet wide, makes up in depth, the exact depth being unknown, no one having ever found bottom. After passing through, or above, the Narrows, the river is level and broad again, and the volume of water of the Hiwassee passed through between the two projecting rocks he couldn't believe it.

Now we reach the foot of the great loop. On the right of the road stands the little hut of John Hester, the blind shingler, on the left of the road and near the river bank stands a little mill. I have been told that this little mill was used for years and years to grind malt out of which to make moonshine whiskey. Whether this is true or not amounts to but little now. Just across the river from the loop and near the upper part of it stands the little North Carolina town of Apalachicola, and in making the trip around the loop you pass by this little town twice, and it is no uncommon thing to hear some stranger say, "Look, there is another town just like the one we just passed." And in that built two towns just alike so close together.

When the railroad was first built the climb up the mountain was made by what was called a "Y." The train would go forward a piece and then it would back up another track and then head out on another track, and in that way get up the mountain. Just who conceived the idea of building the loop around the mountain I don't know. However, the most of the people with whom I have talked give T. A. Aber an engineer for the L. & N. credit for building it. I had the experience of making the first trip over the loop—that is, I was one of the passengers on the first passenger train to make the trip. Since then I have made one trip over the loop, but there is one trip that I shall never forget. It was in September, 1901. Our train had reached the loop, and higher and higher we climbed on curves of steel until we had reached the top, when all at once the trail began to slow up and finally stopped. There was not a word spoken by any of the passengers for—well, it seemed an hour, but it was only a minute or two, when someone said, "What have we stopped for?" and some one answered, "McKinley's funeral."

BRYAN UPHOLDS SECRETARY OF WAR

Declares Baker Has Done All That a Man Could Do and Should Not Be Criticized.

(New York World.)

In championship of prohibition for economic, moral and patriotic reasons, William Jennings Bryan spoke in two churches in this city yesterday under the auspices of more than a dozen congregations.

Additionally he told a reporter for the World last night he was entirely in accord with all that President Wilson had done since the declaration of war against Germany, was wholly a supporter of the peace terms as enunciated by Mr. Wilson and, regarding the storm that has arisen around the war department, Mr. Bryan said:

"I think Secretary Baker has done all that a man could do. From all the information that has come to me through the press and other sources I have formed this opinion. If all conditions are fairly considered, I see no criticism to be honestly made against Mr. Baker. He appears to have achieved all that might be expected."

Mr. Bryan said he would be solely engaged for some time to come in furthering the cause of prohibition and did not contemplate at this time visiting Washington to aid in bringing recalcitrant democrats to the support of the administration.

He declined to consider the proposition of himself going to the capital as a direct offset to Col. Roosevelt. He said it was obvious that the country was behind the president.

Church custom was thrown aside in both religious houses where Col. Bryan spoke. His audiences applauded all the telling points he made against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants and at times even added cheers to the handclapping.

Although looking rather worn, and even aged, he was all fire and vigor in his delivery and did not spare gestures or voice in his denunciation of alcohol.

In the afternoon he spoke at Fort Washington Presbyterian church to more than 1,000 men, women and children, the services being held under the auspices of the Men's club of the Chelsea Methodist church, with several other congregations represented.

Bishop James Whatford Bashford, of the Methodist Episcopal church in China, delivered an opening prayer, and Mr. Bryan was introduced by Rev. Dr. Daniel Hoffman Martin, pastor of the church.

"We can afford to take children's bread and give it to men to convert into alcohol," said Mr. Bryan. "We have had meatless, wheatless, heatless days. Why does not some one propose beerless days?"

"The law makes a man a criminal who sells liquor to a soldier. We ought to make everybody wear a uniform and have no liquor sold. If it is worth while keeping liquor from the soldier on the firing line, it is worth while to keep the men at home who produce the food and ammunition 100 per cent pure."

"The only soldier—the only boy of our army who has died in disgrace in France was a lad who attacked a little French girl while he was drunk. The Washington officials said it was a just punishment, but they haven't hung the man who sold him the stuff."

"We can have prohibition without New York. Four years ago in the campaign against alcohol I spoke to 15,000 persons in Philadelphia, but New York couldn't find enough persons interested to fill a hall that would hold 5,000."

"But I appeal to you now to put New York on the right side in this liquor question."

"Prohibition an out-

law and a futility.

"The liquor interests try to scare you by declaring that if prohibition becomes a law it will be met and defied by the 'blind tiger.' Well, if a tiger is going to get after my boy, the blinder the tiger the better."

"God never made a human being who needed alcohol to stimulate his brain, never made a man who used it to get on with his work, and he would not become a drunkard, and there is no day between the cradle and the grave when it is safe to commence the use of alcohol."

"Every other business a man advertises his finished product in his shop window, but the saloon keeper sends his away for concealment in the calaboose."

At night Mr. Bryan made very much the same speech at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Eighty-sixth street and West End avenue, where he was introduced to an audience numbering about 1,500 by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Goodrich.

Additionally, he said he was proud that the democratic party, that in old days had been known as the "liquor party," had offered the country an opportunity to adopt nation-wide prohibition.

"The democratic party is leading the fight and I want you republicans who for more than a generation have rested on the record you made in the Civil war, to wake up to that fact and carry this state for the proposed constitutional amendment."

"There are only four southern states that are still w.c.t., and only one of these, Louisiana, perhaps, will remain so after the next election."

RAILROAD SHARES DEVELOP STRENGTH

Industrial Conditions Heartened—Bull Side of Market Given Impetus.

New York, Feb. 2.—Wall street threw off this week much of the burden imposed by the government's conservative regulations. Improvement in the eastern transportation situation and an easing of the fuel and labor shortage were conducive to the strength of railroad shares.

Sentiment respecting industrial conditions was heartened by the United States Steel corporation's retention of the "extra" 3 per cent. common dividend, although the financial exhibit for the last quarter of 1917 indicated a further cessation of activity.

December earnings of the leading railway systems already to hand denote the many disadvantages incident to that month and the current period. Trading in the last half of the week received pronounced impetus on the bull side, the movement concurring with President Wilson's message to the western farmers. Peace talk largely superseded domestic economy problems, but due allowance was made for conflicting foreign advice.

Money on call was relatively easy, but time loans, although quotably lower, were actually unchanged, with a greater scarcity of supplies. Foreign exchange showed no appreciable alteration, except for recurrent heaviness of Italian rates. Trading in European remittances is expected to become nominal under federal supervision.

Boston, Feb. 2.—A sentence of fifteen years imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, imposed on Pietro Romano, of Lynn, convicted by court-martial of failing to report under the draft law, was confirmed yesterday by Brig.-Gen. NO RECOGNITION FOR CONSUL JOHN REED

American Writer Appointed Representative of Bolsheviks Has No Official Standing.

Washington, Feb. 2.—John Reed, an American writer, appointed Russian consul-general at New York, will find when he attempts to assume his duties that he has no official standing before the American government.

Officials at the state department yesterday explained that until recognition of the bolsheviks, at least as a de facto power, had been extended, no exequatur could be issued to any consular appointee of Russia. The position of the state department is wholly technical and was not taken because of Mr. Reed's indictment under the espionage law in New York. It is customary in the case of a new government to continue the recognition of consuls appointed under the old government and who are continued at the same posts by the new.
